Hicksville, NY

My name is Emily Weih, and I am currently a junior in the Veterinary Technology Bachelor program. I am eligible to sit for my VTNE exam this upcoming summer to become a Licensed Veterinary Technician. I plan on pursuing veterinary school once I finish my degree at SUNY Canton. It has been my dream to work as a small animal veterinarian at an emergency clinic. I chose to come to Canton because I enjoyed the small community-like environment that was offered here. On top of the welcoming environment, I felt that SUNY Canton also offered extensive experience and hands on training to help prepare me the best they can for my future career. In the veterinary majors, we work closely with our professors who are licensed veterinarians and veterinary technicians, which is incredibly valuable. This was an aspect of Canton that I found to be very important because you can get the most out of the classes that are offered, while also gaining real life experience.

I am currently the Treasurer of our Pre-Veterinarian Club. This is a new club that we just started to help prepare you the best we can for veterinary school applications. We help to improve your resumes, make sure you fulfill all the pre-requisites required, and we ensure that you are succeeding in your classes. On top of that, we plan on doing tours of veterinary schools such as Cornell. We offer many different resources and opportunities to better your chances when applying to veterinary school. I am becoming a member of the Veterinary Technician Honors Society here on campus, known as Tau Phi Zeta. This is my first year as a student ambassador. I decided to become a student ambassador because I wanted to be able to share my experience at SUNY Canton and help give prospective students a first-hand perspective of life at Canton.

Outside of academics, I really enjoy photography, specifically film photography. Traveling is also a big interest of mine. I love learning about the world around us. Aside from that, I enjoy walking the trails here on campus and getting some fresh air in my off time.
